Product Description

H-1210 reverse pedal training machine

The reverse pedal training machine belongs to large-scale fitness equipment and is suitable for gyms, hotels, shopping centers, and private fitness classrooms. This product is a series of products that can be matched as needed. This product is welded from precision steel pipes and thickened steel plates, with a sturdy and stable structure. The bearings adopt precision silent bearings, and the barbell plate is installed in a suspended manner, making installation and disassembly convenient. This product has a stable motion trajectory and can easily achieve training goals. The product color can be customized according to needs. The product is designed by senior designers and tested and verified by professional fitness coaches, making it the first choice for fitness enthusiasts.
